

As a private citizen I have found NJ's "do not call" law a wonderful contribution to quality of life in this state. It is a pleasure to be able to receive a phone call and know that it is not someone trying to solicit me or sell something, especially when I am sitting down to dinner. The rights of impersonal businesses (i.e. telemarketers) to make such calls should not supercede my right to privacy or my right to refuse such calls or to be disturbed in my home. Please do not overturn New Jersey's law.
